PG & Research Department of Botany

Extension Activity -29.08.2017

Report

PG and Research Department of Botany organized UGC funded Extension Activity for the primary class students Panchayat Union Primary School and villagers of Panchalingapuram, Modakurichi, Erode on 29.08.2017. With the aim of increasing the green cover and to provide greenery in barren and man-made deserts the students of Botany undertook an Extension Activity to create awareness about seed balls. Making and scattering seed balls is an activity that appeals to all age groups and walks of life, from elderly people to little children. It was a fun way to get children involved in gardening and they realized the fact that they had in the palm of their hand a little revolution that can change the face of the earth. Kids loved the whole process as it involved design, dexterity, consideration, communication, botany and a big dollop of patience.

The students of Botany explained the medicinal uses of some of the common plants available in that area and projected the video clippings, models and charts of important physiological processes in plants such as Seed germination and Photosynthesis and Ecological models. The programme proved to be extremely useful to the primary class students and they participated enthusiastically in all the events. At the end of the programme Seed balls and Trees and Medicinal plant saplings were distributed to the students which had the potential to improve the natural structure of an area in one fell swoop.
